EXAMINER'S COMMENTS

Third-Party Submission in Published Application Under 37 C.F.R. § 1.99

The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 24 November 2005 by a third party is in compliance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.99 and 37 CFR 1.97. Accordingly, the information disclosure statement has been considered by the examiner.

However, Item C3 under the heading of "Other Art" has been lined through as not being considered by the examiner because not enough information has been presented for the examiner to determine if the submission constitutes a "printed publication." The third-party submitter stated that Item c3 was "a CD-ROM labeled 'Marine Construction 2003 - Emerging Technology for TLP Installations 14 Feb 2003' which contains a Microsoft PowerPoint presentation containing a computer animation segment which was part of a presentation made by Mr. Dwayne Breaux on February 20, 2003, at the Marine Construction 2003 & Risk Forum held in Houston, Texas." The third-party submitter argued that "this reference is a 'printed publication' under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) per the decision in In re Klopfenstein, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 17151 (Fed. Cir. 2004) because it was made directly to those whose interests make them likely to observe and remember whatever it may contain that is new and useful."

However, as the examiner reads In re Klopfenstein, this is only one of the factors taken into consideration in determining whether something constitutes a "printed publication." What appears to be most important in In re Klopfenstein is the duration of the display. In In re Klopfenstein, slides were printed onto a board and displayed continuously for several days at a seminar.

In the present case, the examiner has no idea whether the "computer animation" was only shown once or whether there was a booth at the seminar which had a computer monitor or television continuously displaying the "computer animation" throughout the day. Without more information, the examiner cannot determine if Item c3 on the Third-Party Submission Under 37 CFR § 1.99 constituted a "printed publication" and therefore, the reference has been lined through as not being considered.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-3, 6-12, and 14-26 are allowed.
